

The POPS team is thrilled to work with a host of organizations that share our mission to support positive and diverse narratives about the experience of black fatherhood.

Your partnership and support online is critical to helping us reach our goal of engaging a large national viewership for the series and empower audience to share their own stories, both of challenges and successes, of black fatherhood using #BlackDadJoy and #PopsLife.

All of the episodes of the series will be available for free via YouTube and can be embedded, emailed, and posted on your channels. This guide includes suggested language and copy for you to spread the word about POPS and encourage your community to be part of building a positive and affirming narrative about black fathers and families.
